Housing & Homelessness

Safe & Affordable Housing

Finding the right housing can be overwhelming because there are many factors, including location, cost, comfort, and safety. Some unscrupulous people take advantage of others who are vulnerable due to an urgent need for safe, affordable housing. Be sure to seek assistance from trusted resources including state, county, and local governments, and community-based agencies that are accountable to laws, rules, and policies.

HUD.gov offers housing counselors who can help answer questions about a variety of topics including loans, assistance programs, the home buying process, and connections to real estate agents who can work with you.

If you are seeking affordable rental housing, there are many state and federal programs that offer subsidized housing, public housing, and housing choice vouchers. The Be Connected team can give you the details on how these programs work and provide connections to resources. Call the Be Connected Support Line at 866-4AZ-VETS (866-429-8387).

If you or someone you know is experiencing homelessness, seek out social service agencies that offer a 'needs assessment'. A needs assessment is designed to determine which areas of a person's life are impacted and what immediate resources are available.

Everyone Has a Story

Everyone struggling with housing has a story that led them to where they are today. Understanding an individual's story is essential to serving them accurately and with compassion and dignity. Homelessness can result from:

- Domestic violence forcing them to flee for safety.
- Mental illness, trauma, and/or addiction and a lack of a support system.
- Lack of affordable housing.
- Lack of employment for people who have mental or physical health issues, a criminal record, no driver's license, and no permanent address.

Offer Support

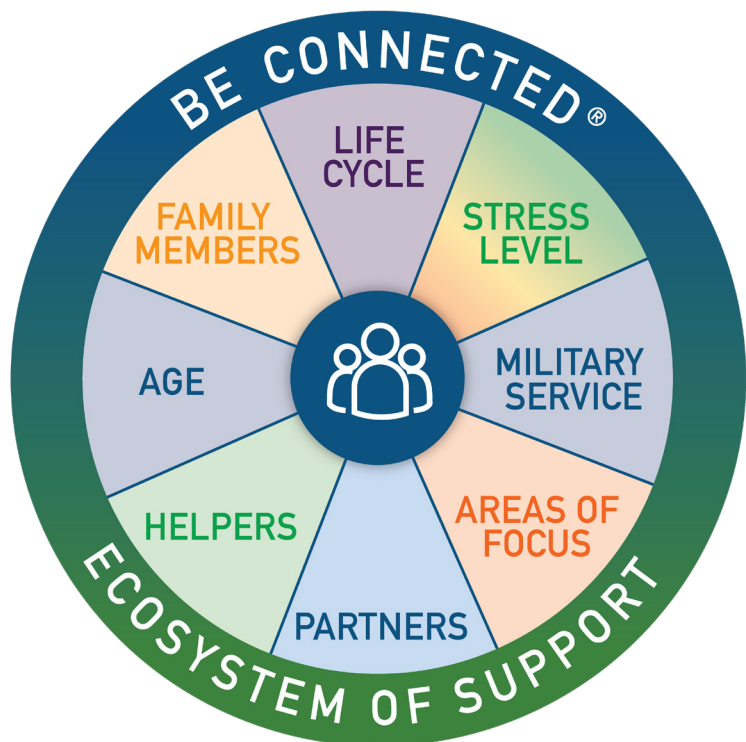

If someone you know is experiencing (or at risk of) homelessness or struggling to find safe, affordable housing, learn more about the problems they are experiencing. Avoid stigmatizing and stereotyping. Ask about the resources they have already tried and if there are any specific practical tasks you could help with. Let them know what help is available and you will work with them to connect to appropriate and available resources.
